2. MEANS TEST

The Means Test looks at an applicant's income and assets to:

- assess whether an applicant is eligible for legal aid, and to
- determine the amount of initial contribution a successful applicant will be required to pay towards the costs of the legal services.

The Means Test consists of three sub-tests:

Income Test looks at the net assessable income of the applicant and any financially associated persons. This is the gross assessable income less allowable deductions. Applicants receiving an eligible Centrelink income support payment at the maximum rate will satisfy the Income Test.

Income test	Current variables
Gross assessable income (includes income from all sources except Carer Allowance and NDIS amounts)
Less deductions
Income tax paid	Amount paid
Housing costs	$500 (Greater Metropolitan Region)
	$400 (All other regions)
Financially Associated Person allowance	$225 (per FAP)
Dependant allowance	$135 (per child)
Maintenance allowance	$135 (maximum per child)
Childcare costs	$325 (maximum)
Net assessable income	$450

Assets Test looks at an applicant's net assessable assets. This is the gross assessable assets less excluded assets.

Assets test	Current variables
Gross assessable assets (Includes all assets including land, cash, shares, debentures and other investments)
Less excluded assets
Household furniture and effects	Reasonable value
Clothing	Reasonable value
Tools of trade	Reasonable value
Lump sum payments	Assessed under the income test
Home equity	$815,000 (maximum)
Farm or business equity	$287,750 (maximum)
Motor vehicles	1 x per one-person household, or 2 x per two or more adult person household
NDIS amount	Amount received
Recognition, redress and reparation payments	Amount received
Allowable assets	$4,660 (single applicant)
	$5,990 (with dependants or FAP)
Net assessable assets	$100 (contribution free limit)

Lifestyle test

The Lifestyle test takes into account an applicant's lifestyle, activities and interests, and information about their general expenditure. An application for legal aid will be refused where Legal Aid NSW considers that the applicant can afford to pay their legal costs.

The Means Test is applied in all matters, except:

- ✗ advice and minor assistance services
- ✗ first appearance bail applications in Local Court criminal duty matters
- ✗ some prisoner's matters
- ✗ Drug Court matters
- ✗ family and civil law duty matters

- ✗ ex-service personnel and their dependants for proceedings in the Administrative Appeals Tribunal under Part II of the Veterans' Entitlement Act 1986 and the Military Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1988

3. MERIT TEST

The purpose of the Merit Test is to assess whether it is reasonable in all the circumstances to grant legal aid, taking into account:

- the nature and extent of
 - any benefit that the applicant might expect to gain by receiving legal aid, or
 - any disadvantage or harm to the applicant that might result from being refused legal aid, and
- whether the applicant has reasonable prospects of success.

The Merit Test is applied in:

- ✓ most non-criminal law matters
- ✓ appeals in criminal law matters
- ✓ Supreme Court bail matters
- ✓ some matters associated with Children's Court proceedings

The Merit Test is not applied in:

- ✗ criminal law matters (except appeals and Supreme Court bail applications)
